RE: Support DOL's final Retirement Security Rules

Dear Senator Schumer, Senator McConnell, Representative Johnson, and Representative Jeffries:

As organizations and individuals representing seniors, working families, retirement investors, women, communities of color, fiduciary investment professionals, economists, and regulatory policy experts, we are pleased to see that the Department of Labor (DOL) has issued Retirement Security Rules that will protect hard-working Americans from the conflicts of interest that often influence financial professionals providing retirement investment advice. The release of these final rules is a major accomplishment in the fight to improve our nation's retirement income security.

These rules will require financial professionals who provide retirement investment advice to put the best interests of their clients ahead of their own financial interests. By taking this essential step, these rules will help all Americans—many of whom are responsible for making their own decisions about how best to invest their retirement savings—keep more of their hard-earned savings so they can enjoy a more financially secure and independent retirement.

It is small account holders and moderate-income retirement savers who stand to benefit most from this rule. The academic literature and real-world experience make clear that it is the less wealthy, often financially unsophisticated retirement savers who are most at risk when it comes to recommendations that are not in their best interests. Too often, those recommendations promote investment products with high costs, substandard features, elevated risks, or poor returns. While the financial adviser makes a substantial profit off these recommendations, the retirement saver pays a heavy price for investment advice that is not in their best interest, amounting to tens or even hundreds of thousands of dollars in lost retirement income. The cumulative harm to all American retirement savers from these conflicts of interest is tens of billions of dollars a year.

Strengthening the protections for hard-working Americans who are saving for a financially secure and independent retirement is a key priority for our organizations, and to its credit, the DOL has worked diligently to make important and necessary changes to an outdated, 50-year old rule. We will oppose any efforts to undermine these rules and urge all Members of Congress to join us in supporting this commonsense and long overdue initiative. Your hardworking constituents deserve no less.

Sincerely,
